

Can You Add More In The Future?

What began as a serendipitous snap shot became one of my favorite cartoon situations. But as families grow, so does the love - and in our house so do the jokes. This has become a full-blown running gag now.

So when the bunny came along it was time for everyone to shove over and make room...

Because of the way I construct my art files there is always room for one more!

What If Our Family Is Really Big?

They asked me to paint Grandma, Grampa, their four dogs, six cats and "Don't forget to include his new red walker!"

I was given a fist-ful of snapshots with this request. All told I crafted more than fourteen separate elements to combine into this final arrangement.

No request is too large or too complex for me to capture on canvas for your family!

Make Us Look Like Our Favorite Cartoon!

When we planned out this ultimate family portrait, another famous family came to mind with their trademark sofa.

It was quite simple to build a custom sofa large enuff for our own composition.

The Pet Portraits and Family Tributes

of
JOE KING

Make Me Look Like A Rock Star!

He was flying for me... John Denver. Troubadour. Activist. Human being. God I wanted to be like him. In the midst of my teenage angst he made wire-rimmed glasses and a high voice socially acceptable. He also helped raise the awareness of things not-so acceptable in a society. "War is not healthy for children and other living things...", "The Box", "One World". I'm trying to explain to my children how a man's life and message should make the world a better place.

"Thank God I'm a country boy!" A portrait of you starring as your favorite musician will really be "far out!"

Make Us Look Like Superheroes!

Mom wants to be Wonder Woman next to Dad as Superman. The twins want to be painted as their favorite Disney Princesses from "Frozen". The teenager wants to be shown as her favorite Major League Baseball hero... No worries!

This super family portrait was commissioned as a holiday gift by a close family friend to celebrate the father's miraculous survival of a deadly plane crash.

The nurses in the ICU ward nic-named him "Superman." All I had to work from was this photograph.

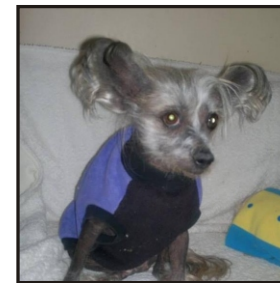

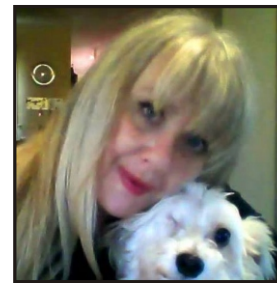

My Pet Is Injured. Can You Fix Him?

This is Lizzy with her Chinese Crested dogs, Dimey & Pinny. Dimey the white one developed a tumor behind one of his eyes and had to have it surgically removed.

We decided to show him healthy & whole in this family portrait.

Sadly, a few months later we discovered that his cancers had spread and were untreatable.

This loving tribute continues to provide a loving reminder of a beloved family member.

Can You Improve On A Poor Photo?

Sometimes a painting can be better than the photo that inspires it.

This is Bam-Bam. One of her favorite things to do each night was sit behind my head as we watched TV or do some reading before bed.

I'm sure you have your own family traditions we can share in a unique way to preserve such precious memories.
